Handmade Blue and White English Earthenware

About us

Established in 2006 by Hampshire based designer Piet van den Beuken and her husband Monty Abram, Roelofs & Rubens has grown into a successful supplier of handmade and hand painted blue and white tableware, tiles and decorations.

Roelofs & Rubens offer charming collections made from excellent quality English earthenware, using a variety of contemporary patterns, unique designs and a blue and white colour scheme that will complement your home.

Piet and Monty work closely with their team to design and produce things that they love and want to use themselves. Inspired by the Delft Blue of Holland, Roelofs & Rubens are producing unique patterns that are instantly recognisable and valued by their customers.

With pieces in the Royal Wedding Delft Collection of the Museum of London and named in the 'Ten Best Dinner Plates' by The Independent, Roelofs & Rubens create pieces that will be treasured for years to come. They enjoy excellent relationships with all their customers including The National Trust, Kumbak Rollercoasters and the Watermill Theatre.

Roelofs & Rubens do hope you enjoy having a look at their products and that you'll love them as much as they do.

Corporate and bespoke

Roelofs & Rubens are able to fully customise a wide range of existing pieces for their customers. Select your desired item, choose your colours, add a name or date (or anything else, length depending). Each piece is then hand painted resulting in a truly unique keepsake to give (or be given).

Private commissions are also taken and following a briefing with the customer a unique one-off design is created and hand painted.

Roelofs & Rubens corporate work includes customising existing products but they specialise in developing tailor-made designs and patterns to represent your organisation. This offers corporate customers looking for gifts for existing or new customers or products to promote their business a wide range of imaginative items.
